

MUSEUMS
NORTHUMBERLAND

I am going to visit Hexham Old Gaol

When I arrive, I will see an open door. This is the entrance.

I can go up the steps in front of me, or use the ramp on my left

When I am inside, I will see a desk. This where I will buy my ticket for the museum.

A member of staff will always be at this desk during my visit

There are ear defenders which I can borrow. There is audio in some areas of the museum, and it can also be quite noisy when it is busy.

There are information boards in most of the rooms. If I need the information in large print or another language, I can ask for a copy at the desk

There are models of people in some of the rooms, but they do not move

I can see the dungeon by pressing the 'D' button in the lift. I do not leave the lift in the dungeon and the doors will not open.

I will hear some audio when I am in the dungeon. This lasts for 90 seconds and then the lift will take me to the ground floor

I can use the stairs to the upper floors if I need to. A member of staff can show me where they are

Some of the steps are very old, so they are uneven in places.

The stone floors may be uneven and the building may be quite cold

I will hear the model of Sir Robert Carey start talking when I arrive on the first floor. The audio lasts for 2 and a half minutes

On the second floor, I will see models of a family. I can learn more by pressing the 3 buttons next to them and listening to their stories

There is an activity room on the top floor. There are dressing up clothes which I can try on here

MUSEUMS
NORTHUMBERLAND

We hope you enjoy your visit!

Sharing Northumberland's Stories...

W: www.museumsnorthumberland.org.uk

Museums Northumberland is the public name for Woodhorn Charitable Trust.
Woodhorn Charitable Trust is registered as a Charity in England and Wales No. 1129712 and a Limited Company 6893854