

Take One Treasure

A series of creative activities to complete based around a chosen work of art or object from the collections of South Shields Museum and Art Gallery

Challenge 2

Dolly Peel

Dolly Peel (1782 - 1857) is a famous South Shields character, a resourceful fishwife from the early years of the 19th century who was also a smuggler and a poet. A statue of her, representing the resilience of local women, stands on River Drive in South Shields.

All about this activity

Take One Treasure is a creative activity focusing on a selected item from the collections of South Shields Museum and Art Gallery.

The activities are in three parts to be completed at the learner's own pace.

You can use materials such as paper, pencils, tape or glue, magazine or newspaper clippings and anything else you can find. Check you have permission before using.

At the end of each activity we ask you take a photograph of your work and email it to us to be included in our on-line art gallery on our Facebook page.

Have fun and we look forward to seeing your creative Treasures.

Take a photograph

Look closely at Dolly's facial expression and body language in the photograph.

- What is she thinking about? How is she feeling?
- Why do you think she is posing with a basket?
- Where do you think she is?

Try and recreate this portrait yourself using only 3 things in your house.

- Take a selfie or get someone to take the picture for you.

What is a portrait?

- A portrait is a painting, photograph, sculpture, or other creative representation of a person in which the face and its expression is the focus.
- A portrait tries to display the likeness, personality, and even the mood of the person.

Make a portrait

Have a go at making a self-portrait.

- Think about how you want to be portrayed. Will you wear a costume, makeup, change your hair style?
- What will you be thinking about and what will you want to reveal about yourself to the viewer?
- Experiment with materials you have at home. You can use photography, collage, paint, pencils, pens, crayons, natural elements from the garden, etc.

Now try and make a portrait of someone you live with.

The art of the word

Create lists of words and phrases that describe the portraits you have made.

- Some portraits tell a story or take the viewer on a journey. Think about the portraits you have created. Do they tell a story?
- Describe the setting, sounds and smells that might be present or the textures one might feel.

Write a poem or short story using the vocabulary as inspiration.
